

Corporate Sustainability

Simplify and streamline organizational sustainability reporting and management

Companies are increasingly focused on sustainability as stakeholders across the value chain prioritize Environmental, Social and Governance goals. B2B customers, end-users, employees, business partners, governments and NGOs and, more recently, investors are all interested in understanding and evaluating a company's sustainability performance. Collecting, managing and disclosing corporate data is a complex challenge, because data comes from many different sources throughout a company and demands accuracy. At the same time, there are a multitude of new and changing disclosure standards to track and respond to. With the growing pressure to manage sustainability, companies are increasingly setting and disclosing ambitious goals. As a result, they need to identify potential gaps in their efforts to achieve their goals and to establish measures to improve performance.
